The textile factory at Prudnik employs about 3,000 persons. The plant works in three shifts. Production includes materials for covers, blankets, curtains, table cloths and the like. Such secret materials as parachutes for the army are also manufactured in a special section at the factory. The special section is off limits to everyone except those employed there. All told, the factory is divided into 11 sections, each of which is engaged in a different kind of production. Finished products are transported from the factory to Lodz by truck or by rail.
